UTAH ENTREPRENEUR CHALLENGE MEDIA RELEASE

UEC Marketing Forum Hosted at Brigham Young University

November 13, 2008 – As the Utah Entrepreneur Challenge (UEC) 2008-2009 competition year progresses, student entrepreneurs are refining the key components to their business plans. The Challenge will host its Marketing Educational Forum at Brigham Young University to continue its forum series offered throughout the competition year to prepare, motivate, and guide UEC competitors and any student entrepreneurs ready to take that step in realizing their goals of starting up a business.

As keynote speaker The Challenge is proud to present Aaron Wong. Mr. Wong was recognized in the “Top 40 Under 40 Professionals” in Utah by the Utah Valley BusinessQ magazine. He is the founder and president of Arrow Quality International, a Chinese bridge consulting firm which connects U.S. and Chinese businesses to successfully promote the influential trade between the two nations. Arrow Quality International was also dubbed the “Best Kept Secret” in Utah by Utah Valley BusinessQ.

“We are thrilled to feature Mr. Wong to speak at this forum,” says Sam Clarke, UEC Chair. “His insights in marketing a business and as an entrepreneur will certainly be very helpful and motivating for all!”

This forum is one of several educational forums put on by the Utah Entrepreneur Challenge. The goal of these forums is to give new entrepreneurs guidance in the key aspects of starting a business. Other upcoming forum topics include intellectual property and finance. Although it is not required for competitors to attend the educational forums, participants who have attended these forums the past years have found them to be invaluable assets as they have prepared for the competition.

The Marketing Forum is an opportunity for anyone to gain a bit of guidance, advice, or push in the right direction in this aspect of starting and running a business.
